REPUBLICANS ADOPT PLATFORM

PLATFORM FAILS MENTION VETOED FARM BILL

FARM BLOC STAGED DEMONSTRATION ON FLOOR

EVERY ASSISTANCE PLEDGED TO FARMERS BY G. O. P. PLATFORM

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT PROMISED; ADMINISTRATION IS PRAISED

KANSAS CITY, June 14. (AP)—Ignoring any mention of the controverted equalization fee or the McNary-Haugen bill but pledging every assistance in the reorganization of the farmers' marketing machinery, the platform upon which the republican candidate for president will stand in the November elections was presented to the convention today for approval.

The farm plank agreed upon after long and tedious hours of labor in the resolutions committee, declares a big problem faces the farmer, but instead of the equalization fee which prompted President Coolidge twice to veto the McNary-Haugen bill, it proposes enactment of legislation creating a federal farm board clothed with power to set up farmer-owned and controlled stabilization corpor-

SPECTACULAR HOLDUP WITNESSED BY MANY DELEGATES THURSDAY

CONGESTED TRAFFIC AIDS ESCAPE OF BANDITS; 3 PERSONS SHOT

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Timing their raid to coincide with the traffic jam just preceding opening of the fourth session of the republican national convention seven men held up the Home Trust company here today and escaped with loot estimated at more than $25,000.

Firing promiscuously with shotguns and revolvers as they fled the bank following the unloosening of tear gas bombs by an employe, the robbers wounded two policemen and several other persons.

One death resulted indirectly from the holdup. Alvin Faeth, 80, who witnessed the affair, fell dead in a store entrance. His death was attributed to heart disease.

James B. Smith, traffic officer near the bank, was dangerously wounded by a shotgun charge that struck him in the neck and right shoulder. Darrell Capshaw, a patrolman, was shot in the leg.

Lillia M. Rolland, 16, was hit in the face by a bullet, and dropped almost in the path of the fleeing car, which swerved and missed her by inches.

Three other unidentified pedestrians were reported slightly wounded.

Alexander Rieyer, president of the bank, estimated the loot at more than $25,000 and said a final checkup might place the figure near $50,000.

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Six or seven bandits today held up the Home Trust company at 1119 Walnut, in the downtown district here, and escaped with loot estimated approximately at $60,000. Two policemen and a bystander were shot by the robbers as they fled from the bank.

Walnut street was crowded with elegates and others on their way to Convention Hall, six blocks away, for today's session of the republican national convention when the holdup occurred. The jammed downtown streets aided the robbers in their escape.

J. B. Smith, traffic officer at Eleventh and Walnut, was shot in the neck and shoulder. His condition was reported dangerous. Patrolman Wiggins was shot in the leg, and an unidentified woman, standing more than a block from the bank, was wounded in the leg. The bandits fired with shotguns in their race away from the bank building.

There was not shooting in the bank. After the robbers had scooped up the money in the teller's cage, several employes hurled tear gas bombs and the bandits retreated through the overpowering fumes.

The gas was so heavy in the bank 30 minutes after the holdup that it was impossible for bank officials to enter and make an accurate checkup of the loss.

Alexander Rieger, president, estimated that the loot amounted to $60,000.

Six of the robbers entered the bank shortly after it opened. Swinging levelled shot guns and operating with perfect precision, they lined up most of the bank's 40 employes working on the main floor, while two of their number hurdled in cages and gathered all the money in sight.

Operating swiftly the bandits fled the bank within a few minutes after entering, and jumped into their car, left in charge of one of their confederates at the curb.

The direction the bandit car took in its flight could not be determined because of the jammed streets, and traffic snarl that resulted.

M'KELVIE TO SPEAK FOR FARMERS IN SECONDING OF HOOVER'S NAME FOR PLACE

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Samuel R. McKelvie, former governor of Nebraska, will speak for Herbert Hoover's friends in the corn belt when he seconds the nomination of the commerce secretary at the Republican convention.

As the editor of a farm journal—The Nebraska Farmer — he advocates curtailment of production as a solution for the present problems of agriculture. He points out that the law of supply and demand governs the prices of farm commodities and he reminds farmers foreign markets can no longer absorb the surplus food from American farms as they did during the World war.

An eight-hour day on the farms, McKelvie believes, would do much toward restoring and maintaining agricultural prosperity by eliminating the surplus output of major crops. The nation would be saving food for the future, he says, because the fertility of the soil would not be taxed to produce the crops that now glut the world markets.

People in cities would receive immediate benefits, too, if the farmers did not work so hard, declares the editor, explaining that more leisure and more money in rural communities would increase the demand for products of factories.

Farm wives, however, cannot look to the former governor for much relief from their work because Mrs McKelvie enters into this picture. When she was the first lady of the Husker state, Mrs. McKelvie took care of the 21 rooms in the executive mansion without the help of servants. She also found time for sewing, writing and entertaining.

Friends of the governor said she was able to do all the work because she had an extraordinary husband, who did not need her attention all the time.

And Mrs. McKelvie agreed.

Since he vacated the governor's chair to return to the editor's desk in 1923, McKelvie has been in touch with advisers of the Coolidge administration on agricultural matters.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE AND WIFE NOW EN ROUTE TO SUMMER HOME IN WISCONSIN WOODS

On Board President Coolidge's Special Train, En Route to Superior, Wisconson, June 14.—(AP)— Delayed two days in leaving Washington for his vacation, President Coolidge was pushing steadily westward today on his way to his Wisconsin summer home.

With him was Mrs. Coolidge, whose sudden indisposition Monday caused the last minute postponement of the trip. Although she rose from her bed in the White House yesterday to undertake the move, she did so after careful examination by White House physicians who declared her sufficiently recovered to be able to stand the long journey without undue danger.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge left the White House for the station almost three hours before the scheduled departure of the train. Mrs. Coolidge was strong enough to walk alone without even the help of Mr. Coolidge's arm.

The special car had been placed in the silence and darkness of a remote siding, where it stood, quiet except for the barking of Robroy, Tiny Tim and King Cole, three of the White House dogs, allowed in the special car, until it was hitched on to the rest of the train when this pulled out of the station proper.

President and Mrs. Coolidge sat in the parlor of their car only a short while and then retired before the train got under way. Their car was joined to the rest of the train so carefully that they were not even disturbed.

The large nine car special train taking the chief executive west carried about 70 persons. In addition to a somewhat larger clerical staff than President Coolidge usually takes away from Washington for the summer, Erward T. Clark, Mr. Coolidge's personal secretary, and Rudolph Forster, executive clerk at the White House, were on the train. A score of household employees from the White House, the usual number of secret service operatives, about ten newspaper men and a half dozen press photographers completed the trainload.

Special radio arrangements had been made on the train to allow President Coolidge to follow the political situation if he so desired.

TERRIBLE LOOTING AND CARNAGE CARRIED OUT IN TIENTSIN

LONDON, June 14. (AP)—A Tientsin dispatch to the Evening News says that that city was the scene of terrible looting and carnage last night in disorders carried on by gunmen following the surrender of the city by the Northerners.

The streets and the River Pei-Ho were strewn with dead and the feeling in Tientsin was reported tense in fear of a repetition of the outrages.

The thorough defense plans of the foreign concessions worked out excellently, but many bullets fired in the shooting and looting outside fell in the foreign compounds.

In the Chinese city men and women were shot mercilessly. Armed men in all kinds of Quasi-military clothes killed and looted generally.

Attempt Made Kill Father Present Jap Empress in Formosa

LONDON, June 14.—(AP)—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Tokyo says an attempt was made to assassinate Prince Kuni, father of the present empress during his visit to Formosa on May 14. This was learned when the press ban on news of the attempt was lifted today.

The dispatch stated that a Korean rushed at Prince Kuni's automobile and hurled a dagger. The prince was not injured.

TO VOTE ON ROAD BONDS.

FORT STOCKTON, June 14.—(AP)—Responding to a petition signed by 500 voters of Pecos county, the commissioners court today ordered a $500,000 road bond election on July 21. The sum would be spent in construction of a network of highways across Pecos county.

STEWART ACQUITTED CHARGE OF REFUSING ANSWER QUESTIONS

CASE WAS OUTGROWTH OF SENATE INQUIRY INTO FAMOUS OIL DEAL

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Board of the Indiana Standard Oil Company, was acquitted today by a jury in the District of Columbia supreme court of charges of refusing to answer questions of the senate oil committee concerning Liberty bond oil profits of the Continental Trading Company.

The wealthy oil man was charged with a misdemeanor for alleged violation of Section 102 of the criminal code which provides punishment for a regularly summoned witness to refuse to answer pertinent questions asked by a congressional committee. Stewart maintained the questions asked last February by the committee were not pertinent.

Stewart arose as the jury filed into the court room after being out since 1:05 yesterday afternoon. As the foreman pronounced him "not guilty" a smile wreathed his face and he walked over and shook hands with each of the eight men and four women who had cleared him of the charges.

Stewart was surrounded by his counsel and friends who congratulated him upon the acquittal that climaxed his fight against questions asked by the senate committee which the oil man held had nothing to do with the subject of the inquiry and in reality were only inquiries concerning his private affairs. He declined, however, to make any statement, saying that possibly later in the day he would have something to say at his hotel.

United States Attorney Rover declined to make any comment upon the verdict of the jury.

Frank H. Hogan for counsel for Stewart declared:

"This is another case of the citizens of the District of Columbia resenting in an unqualified manner the era of political persecution born in senatorial investigation committees and sent to the courts with senatorial orders to convict. It is time that the Walshes, Nyes and Norrises should learn that procedure of that kind cannot prevail in this capital city.

"The defense did not challenge a man or woman on the jury. The jury was picked by the court and the case was picked by the senate. Notice should be taken by the senate and everyone that you cannot railroad innocent men in this district."

Acquittal of the misdemeanor charge does not entirely clear Stewart of charges that resulted from his appearance before the senate committee. His testimony on the occasion of his first and last appearance was certified to the district attorney and presented to the grand jury. An indictment on a charge of perjury was asked of the grand jury which is expected to return its decision to the court within a few days.

Outrage, Says Norris.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—The acquittal of Robert W. Stewart was termed an "outrage against justice" by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, chairman of the senate judiciary committee.

"It is an outrage against justice" he said. "It demonstrates clearly that if you have money enough to hire lawyers, you will be found not guilty, even though you admit that you are guilty."

CHALLENGE SOUNDED AS ADMINISTRATION BACKERS RULE MEET

DEMONSTRATION STAGED DURING PLATFORM FIGHT BY ANTI-HOOVERITES

BY BYRON PRICE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

CONVENTION HALL, Kansas City, June 14. (AP)—A farm bloc protest with the ring of a challenge sounded through Convention Hall today as the republican party proceeded toward the final ratification of the platform for 1928.

Interrupting a succession of its own speakers, as they gave militant notice that the farm states really were aroused for the McNary-Haugen bill, the anti-Hoover coalition of delegates centering around Lowden of Illinois carried away convention decorum with a ten-minute demonstration in defiance of the convention gavel.

While a farm leader in a gallery acted as cheer leader they whooped it up with such a din as the convention had not heard since it met last Tuesday, and were quieted only when the convention chairman told them that more speechmaking against the proposed administration farm plank was still to come.

Farm Plank Defended.

This plank itself, which promised farm relief but leaves out all mention of the equalization fee, was defended by a relay of speakers under the captaincy of Representative Fort of New Jersey, the Hoover floor leader, while the states whose delegations stand against the McNary-Haugen bill took their turn at noisy approbation.

Earl C. Smith of Illinois, speaking first for the supporters of an equalization fee enorsement in the party platform told the convention that if it expected the support of the republican farmers of the Middle West, the time had come to abandon "generalities" in national conventions. Frank W. Murphy, also an Illinoisian and an active worker in Washington for the Mc-

Vatican Authorizes Denial That Pope is In Ill Health Now

ROME, June 14.—(AP)—The Vatican authorizes an emphatic denial of a statement published in the newspaper Il Brillante today that Pope Pius was suffering from a bad attack of areterio sclesosis which was worrying his enthourage.

The correspondent for the Associated Press, who called at the Vatican today learned that the pontiff enjoys perfect health.

Paper Says Pope Ill.

ROME, June 14.—(AP)—Il Brillante, a fascist newspaper, today said that Pope Pius was suffering from a bad attack of arterio sclerosis, which has reached such a stage that is was worrying his entourage.

The paper said the pontiff refused to summon a doctor and that he had given up wine for beer and was taking longer walks as he said that exercise alone gave relief. He has refused to reduce the number of his audiences or curtail his activities in any way.

Other Presidential Campaigns

(By The Associated Press)

(This is the fifteenth in a series of sketches of presidential campaigns since 1856.)

The democrats held in 1912 the longest nominating convention in their history up to that time, meeting at Baltimore from June 25 to July 2. Champ Clark of Missouri went to the convention with more votes than any rival for the nomination, but was unable to obtain the two-thirds majority necessary to nominate, and out of the deadlock which ensued the party chose Woodrow Wilson, a scholar and a governor of New Jersey. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, another former governor, was named for vice president.

In a stormy session at Chicago, June 18-23, the republican starwarts forced renomination of William Howard Taft, and Theodore Roosevelt, dissenting from this selection, called a convention of progressives. He was named as the progressive republican candidate for president without opposition, and Hiram Johnson was chosen as his running mate.

The division of republican strength brought the party to defeat and resulted in election of Wilson and Marshall. Taft carried but two states.

NOBILE PARTY FEEL SAFE AT LAST ACCORDING RADIO MESSAGES TO SUPPLY BASE

By O. ARNESEN,
Correspondent of Associated Press.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, June 14.—(AP)—General Umberto Nobile, and the five men of the crew of the Italia stranded with him off Northeast Land believe that they are now virtually safe.

In communication exchanged between the Citta Di Ilano and the Nobile party, Guiseppi Biogi, radio operator for the stranded men, said that the group, which has been waiting rescue for almost three weeks, felt that safety was in sight.

This response, which was not elaborated, was felt at King's Bay to indicate that the party is now so near Boeck Island or Foyne Island that they could get ashore or that with news of the various rescue expeditions hastening to their aid they felt sure they would be saved.

No news has been received of the fate of the other ten men of the party. Three of these men, including Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish meterologist, left the Nobile party on May 30 in an effort to reach North Cape over the ice and have since dropped from sight. The other seven men were carried off in the balloon part of the Italia when the control cabin was torn loose as the dirigible struck the ice.

Ice experts at Kings Bay said today that there was a possibility the balloon party might have reached land by being blown toward King Charles Island, south of Northeast Land in Barents Sea.

During the three weeks since the Italia met disaster, there have been only a few days of good sunshiny weather, most of the time being marked by strong winds, a gray sky, snow and cold.

The icebreaker Braganza, which returned to Kings Bay yesterday to take on fresh provisions, will start north again tonight. She will take the Norwegian planes aboard and will try to reach North Cape. The Hobby which has been serving as baseship for the Norwegian fliers, Captain Riiser-Larsen and Lieutenant Luetzow Holm, will return to Norway where she is needed for other work.

Dog teams will be carried aboard the Braganza and it is believed that they will be able to reach the Nobile party within fourteen days if the Russian icebreaker Maligin or the plane have not previously effected rescues.

TEXAS DELEGATES BACKING HOOVER AND REGULAR PLATFORM

By L. B. DILBECK,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

KANSAS CITY, June 14. —(AP)— The Texas delegation to the National Republican convention was unanimously for the majority platform report omitting the equalization fee from the farm relief plan today.

Judge C. O. Harris of San Angelo signed the majority report as the member of the platform and resolutions committee and his colleagues stood behind him without a single announced dissent on the floor.

Committed to Hoover for president first, last and all the time, the Texas group had not determined its vice-presidential choice or choices, preferred to let it stand and be ruled somewhat by future exigencies of the convention.

CONVENTION VOTES DOWN OBJECTIONS TO MAJORITY REPORT

NOMINATION WILL BE MADE AT NIGHT SESSION CHAIRMAN ANNOUNCED

CONVENTION HALL, Kansas City, June 14. (AP)—Upholding the majority of its platform committee, the republican national convention today rejected a minority farm plank based on the principles of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill. It had been proposed by Earl C. Smith, a Lowden delegate from Illinois.

CONVENTION HALL, Kansas City, June 14.—(AP)—After rejecting minority agricultural and prohibition enforcement planks, the Republican national convention today approved the party platform, as reported by its resolutions committee.

CONVENTION HALL, Kansas City, June 14.—(AP)—The fourth session of the Republican national convention ended at 2:46 p. m. today, after a session lasting four hours and 47 minutes. At the fifth session tonight at 7 p. m. Chairman Moses announced, nominating speeches will be made and a candidate for president nominated.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler made a short speech advocating repeal of the 18th amendment instead of its enforcement. No one replied to him, and by a viva voce vote the motion was laid on the table.

SENATOR LAFOLLETTE INTRODUCES MINORITY PLATFORM REPORT

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Taking sharp issue with the majority of the resolutions committee of the republican convention, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., of Wisconsin today made public a minority report prepared for presentation from the convention floor itself.

LaFollette, who represented his state on the committee, came out flatly for the McNary-Haugen farm relif bill which was vetoed in the closing days of the last congress by President Coolidge, declaring that in addition to having the measure enacted into law he favored its administration "by those sympathetic with its objects."

"The stabilization of farm prices above the cost of production rather than upon the present levels of foreign lands," he declared, "is essential to the continued existence of free farms, free homes and free men; if the tariff is necessary to industry, control of surplus is necessary to agriculture; and when this equality is denied the farmer becomes the victim of a form of privilege he will no longer endure."

He added that to those engaged in agriculture the nation owed the conquest of a wilderness for homes and the republican party its "formation and its most loyal" support.

LaFollette also argued that as a further aid to agriculture the republican party advocates the "immediate undertaking of a great national, constructive program to improve and develop" its waterways; providing flood control; irrigation; cheaper transportation; and the placing of all interests on an "equal footing in gaining entry into the markets of the world."

Presents Platform

SEN. REED SMOOT

Read platform agreed upon by majority of committee before convention Thursday morning.

CHAIRMAN SMOOT READS PLATFORM TO NOISY CROWD

CHAIRMAN MOSES STARTS CONVENTION SESSION ON TIME THURSDAY

BY BYRON PRICE,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

CONVENTION HALL, Kansas City, June 14.—(AP)—A platform fulfilling the hopes of administration republicans but challenged by the anti-Coolidge western farm leaders by the LaFollette men of Wisconsin, and by some of the party's moister elements was spread today on the record of the republican national convention.

Brought in by the platform committee after two days and nights of labor, and read from the speaker's rostrum by Senator Smoot of Utah, an administration stalwart and a pillar among Hoover men, the declaration of party principles aroused immediate and insistent objections from those elements who had lost their long argument in the committee. The McNary-Haugen leaders, the young senator LaFollette, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, were among the protestants who notified convention officials they felt obliged to oppose adoption on the convention floor.

None of these really expected to overturn the committee action.

BY BYRON PRICE
Associated Press Staff Writer

CONVENTION HALL, Kansas City, June 14.—(AP)—Coming together for a farm relief fight that everybody conceded to be as good as over before it began, the Republican National convention was urged along by its officers today toward completion of a platform and nomination of a presidential candidate by nightfall.

With the Hoover majority in full control, and growing almost hourly, the delegates appeared convinced that about all that remained to be decided was the size of the vote by which the convention was to adopt a declaration of principles in full harmony with the policies of the republican administration and then nominate President Coolidge's secretary of commerce to head the ticket. The vice presidency, however, still was very much in doubt, and Hoover's running mate probably will not be selected until tomorrow.

Smoot Arrives Early

Senator Smoot of Utah, head of the platform committee and center of the day and night unsuccessful struggle for a compromise farm relief plank that would avert a floor fight was one of the earliest arrivals. Looking even taller and leaner than usual, he mounted the speakers platform, got himself set before the big silver "mike" and made an adjustment in the location of the small speakers table, so that he would be prepared for the moment when he was to lay before the convention the inished product of his long labors.

The new permanent chairman, Senator Moses, was busy also in miscellaneous preliminaries.

Railroads in the United States spent $100,000,000 in the last five years on grade crossing elimination, and yet the surface of this national problem has merely been scratched. Many times that vast sum will have been expanded before even the main highways are free of these death traps.

Despite the large expenditures that have been made for the elimination of grade crossings by means of grade separation, the number of such crossings is increasing. The growing density of highway traffic makes the problem all the more serious, while the growing interstate nature of such traffic broadens the problem to one of national importance. The railroads are working energetically and persistently at the problem, but there is a divided responsibility between the managements and the public.

Any expenditure of public and private funds no matter how great is justified by the fact that last year 2,371 persons were killed and 6,613 injured in grade crossing accidents. As long as there are crossings at grade there will be accidents.

There is some solace in the fact that while the number of automobiles increased 5 per cent and the number of grade crossings increased there was an appreciable decrease in crossing accidents and fatalities.

Upon the government rests the responsibility of discouraging the establishment of new grade crossings, aiding the railroads in the work of elimination and enforcing protective measures. Part of every highway improvement project should be the elimination of every grade crossing encountered.

COLLGE NOT FOR ALL.

The federal bureau of education finds that the rush of students to the colleges has begun to slacken. Each recent year has recorded its increase in attendance, but at a reduced rate of gain. The figure of 120,000 attending institutions of higher learning in 1890 has been swelled to 850,000 in 1928. The slowing up has been noted during the last three or four years.

There is no ground for discouragement in the slight proportionate decrease in academic procession. On the contrary, it may mark the beginning of a really more wholesome trend. In a recent address John D. Rockefeller, Jr., suggested that many of those who enter the college halls are not naturally fitted for it merely because it is the fashion or because college life holds possibilities of new diversions is to follow a course that frequently spells failure to an otherwise promising career.

There is no indication that existing colleges will not always have all the students they can accommodate. There is the danger that many will go merely because it is "the thing to do," and therefore will miss the real purpose of a college education.

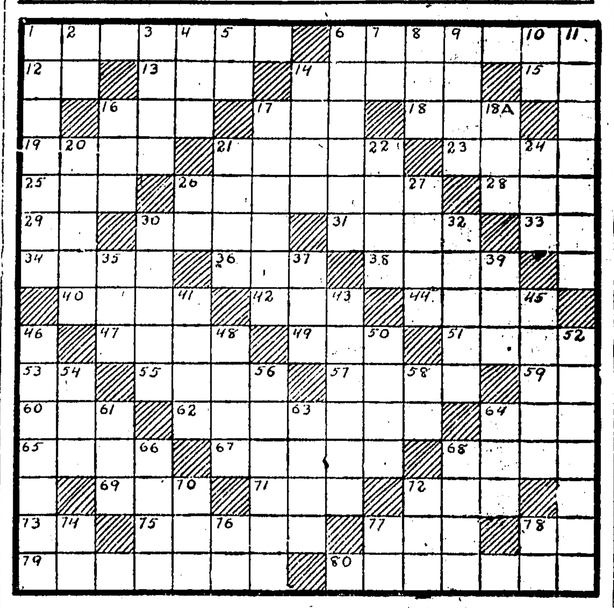

The Corsicana Daily Sun has been allotted admission to the Democratic convention auditorium for 125 citizens of Corsicana and Navarro county. The Sun is sponsoring a special train to Houston which will leave Corsicana at 10 o'clock the morning of June 26. The first 125 buying tickets on the special will also receive one of the convention admission tickets. The Sun experienced considerable difficulty in securing this block of tickets. The Sun has nothing to gain in the disposition of the tickets. The paper is only serving the community. An early reservation on the special train will assure admittance into the convention auditorium. If you don't believe it is a difficult matter to get a ticket into the convention auditorium—well, just make the effort.

Another painful type is the one who gives you about half his attention, after carefully placing the point of his pencil on the word in the letter where he stopped reading.

Most of the earnest senators who are investigating campaign fund methods are not up for election this fa and will have to wait to apply the information.

With a hundred thousand angry peasants tramping back and forth, Rumania should eventually have some highways.

FARM WEEK IN WASHINGTON

By FRANK I. WELLER.
Associated Press Farm Editor

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Of particular moment to such potato-growing states as Maine, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Colorado, Idaho and Washington, public hearings are expected to be ordered soon by the United States Tariff commission in its investigation of production costs at home and abroad. Farm organizations backing the survey expect it to result in an increased tariff for the protection of American producers.

Figures submitted to the commission show that during the calendar years of 1926 and 1927 the importation of white potatoes amounted to a total of 10,952,062 bushels, valued at $13,575,293. This represents an increase of 281 per cent as compared with potato imports for the calendar years of 1924 and 1925.

The present tariff on potatoes amounts to one-half cents a pound, or 30 cents a bushel. Under the flexible provisions of the tariff act, if the commission's findings so warrant, the tariff may be raised 50 per cent, which would make the rate 45 cents a bushel.

Although no date has been set, established rules of the commission provide that notice shall be given 30 days prior to the opening of public hearings in Washington. In addition the commission will make a field survey to obtain first-hand information on the cost of producing potatoes in this country.

Large quantities of potatoes imported by the United States come from Bermuda, but the bulk originates in Canada and it is understood that the investigation is aimed primarily against Canadian imports. A number of other potato-producing countries are shut out by quarantine, the federal government's barrier against introduction of foreign plant diseases.

An attempt will be made to show that large stocks of American potatoes have been denied a market due to the presence of imported supplies and that the present tariff is so low foreign producers can offer potatoes at a price below production costs in the United States.

A comparison of taxes, here and abroad will be offered as a contributing element in the so-called depressive influence of outside competition. The relative costs of machinery and farm labor are other factors to be considered.

Elite of Roumania Learning to Cook

BUCHAREST, Rumania — (AP)— Special classes in cookery are being held for Rumanian society women at the Girls Cooking school here.

Thus dies an ancient tradition that "Ladies never know about the vulgarities of cooking."

The reason for the popularity of the "cooking class" among the elite lies for a great part in the fact that the innovation has the sponsorship of the royal family. Queen Maric during her visit to America noticed that a practical knowledge of cooking was not considered "vulgar" by her hostesses, but that, on the contrary, the science of food was held in esteem. Many American recipes for dishes that pleased the queen during her trip across the United States are studied by the classes.

Moses helped lug in a big silk American flag, with gold fringe, mounted on a twelve foot wooden standard, with a gold eagle at the top. The standard was set up to one side of the speakers table. It was to be the central decoration for a part of the program taking cognizance of flag day.

Prohibition Fight.

While the chairman and other convention officials puttered around with last minute details, Nicholas Murray Butler, the irrepressible president of Columbia and a delegate at large from New York, came up to give the once over to the Borah prohibition plank, placed in the proposed platform over the protest of Butler and others of the platform committee. It pledges the party to strict enforcement of the prohibition amendment by name.

After a good look at Mr. Borah's handiwork, Dr. Butler said he would take his fight against the plank to the convention floor.

Three minutes before the opening hour Senator Moses began to whack the table with his big wooden mallet, shouting for the delegates to take their seats. To a casual observer unschooled in the niceties of parliamentary practice, it appeared very doubtful indeed whether a quorum was present, but the chairman was determined to go ahead. The galleries still were at least nine-tenths empty.

Neither delegates nor spectators, such of them as were present, paid any attention to Moses' petition for order but he persisted in his determination to start on time, or ahead of time, willy nilly.

Rabbi Opens Session.

He presented Rabbi Herman M. Cohen, of Kansas City, who pronounced the opening invocation as everybody stood. He prayed that all of the acts of the convention should be in accord with the purposes of the divine father.

Then Senator Moses in a few crisp sentences, reminded the convention of the advent of flag day and taking the silken folds or Old Glory in his hands, continued:

"We claim no monopoly on the flag but we do recall that the first task of our party was to make this flag the symbol of a united country."

The band played the Star Spangled Banner and the audience stood and sang the words. Then the bandsmen got their signals mixed and broke into the Stars and Stripes Forever while Moses hammered unavailingly with his gavel and snapped a whole squad of messengers into action to get the music shut off.

This got results and the chairman recognized Senator Smoot to present the platform. The rules of the house of representatives were in effect, limiting speechs to five minutes each but Senator Moses said he would entertain motions to suspend the rules to permit speakers to have "ten minutes and no more."

Smoot Reads Platform

Smoot got a good hand as he stepped up before the microphones and began to read the platform.

The platform itself got its first applause, a brief interim of handclapping, when the committee chairman read the sentence endorsing unequivocally the administration of President Coolidge.

Scarcely had Smoot read two pages before Chairman Moses walked to the runway and rapped loudly with his gavel, directing the delegates to take their seats.

"No further business will be transacted until the delegates take their seats."

Cries of "Louder."

The Utah senator resumed the reading but was interrupted by raucaus cries of "louder" from the far off galleries. That halted him for a moment and he changed his position to that he came within the range of the battery of "mikes" at the front of the runway.

Delegates continued to mill around, wandering up and down the aisles and along the passageways in the rear. Smoot had the copy of the platform on a music rack and he rested both hands on each side of it as he was fairly well worn out by the long fight over the platform which he presented.

The platform declaration that "the record of the United States treasury under Secretary Mellon stands unrivalled and unsurpassed" brought a round of applause.

Again there was handclapping when Smoot told of the more than six billions of dollars of reduction in the public debt during the seven years of republican administration.

Farm Tariff Applauded.

After Smoot had gotten through the tax plank, the crowd again set up its cry of "louder." Chairman Moses again pounded for order.

The declaration for increased tariff rates for the protection of the American farmer got a scattering applause.

The threat of the chairman to send forward the phalanx of deputy-sergeant-at-arms seemed to have good effect on the delegates, the great majority of whom remained in their places and followed the reading of the declaration upon which the party goes to the country in November.

The declaration that the party would continue to steadfastly oppose the cancellation of foreign debts met with the approval of the convention.

The hall was much quieter for a while as the reading went on.

Many of the delegates had not previously heard the language of the agricultural relief plang, and Senator Smoot had no trouble commanding the attention of the convention when he reached that part of the reading. Those from the industrial section, as well as the delegates from the McNary-Haugen country listened very closely.

Applause Is Light.

There was a spater of applause from widely scattered sections of the hall when Smoot read the promise for aid to cooperative marketing and one or two longer bursts of applause as he went on down through the phrases dealing with traffic and other considerations and winding the phrases dealing with tariff and other considerations and winding up with the declaration for "economic equality" for agriculture.

There was a real, sure enough cheer, approaching the dimensions of a demonstration when Senator Smoot reached the plank commending the work of the department commerce under "Secretary Herbert Hoover." The delegates came to their feet at this first mention in the convention of the name of the man for whom a majority already had decided to vote for president. As the cheering continued, someone in the California delegation unfurled a California state flag, with its bear and star, and waved it aloft while a man in the Texas delegation took up his state standard and started toward the platform in an attempt to organize a parade. But he desisted, and returned to his place as Chairman Moses hammered for order. This would-be parader was C. O. Harris of San Angelo, Texas.

Hoover Demonstration.

The standards of New Hampshire, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, and Arkansas also were raised aloft by Hoover delegates in those delegations and tucked backward and forward above the heads of the cheering crowd. The ovation had been on for three minutes when the chairman finally rapped the demonstrators back to their seats.

Just a flutter of handclapping greeted the prohibition plank, in which the party is pledged to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. This plank was something new, for four years ago the Cleveland convention contended itself with a blanket declaration for enforcement of all laws.

Smoot finished the reading in one hour and fifteen minutes and then moved adoption of the report, but Chairman Moses recognized Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., who presented a minority plank. The Wisconsin delegation stood up and cheered and the youthful senator was given applause by the other delegates and galleries.

Wisconsin Progressive.

La Follette, in a brief introductory speech said Wisconsin always had sent a progressive delegation to the national convention and always presented a minority platform. La Follette declared that while the first of the platforms Wisconsin offered had been "hissed and jerred," in the convention, 32 of the 35 proposals which had been made have been written into law.

This brought a whooping cheer from some sections of the convention with a yell from the south gallery "Atta boy, Bob."

La Follette got a real cheer from the galleries and some of the delegates when he read his proposed farm relief plank which declared for the equalization fee. When the senator declared that the president had prevented the McNary-Haugen bill from becoming a law by a veto, many of the delegates cheered, the Massachusetts delegation, in the front row right opposite the platform, leading in the cheering.

La Follette bowed and smiled at the cheering delegates and then took a drink of water. When the applause ceased, he said: "Ladies and gentlemen, it is so unusual for a delegate from Wisconsin to be cheered in a Republican National convention that I thank you."

Substitute Rejected.

The senator finished reading at one minute past twelve o'clock after holding the convention only 26 minutes. He was applauded and cheered for nearly a minute.

The La Follette substitute then was promptly rejected by the convention with a roaring volume of "noes" after there had been a scattering of "ayes."

This brought the convention down to fight over the farm plank, Senator Moses recognizing delegate H. C. Smith of Illinois, who presented the minority proposal. There was a howl of protest when Moses said Smith would be given half an hour.

Bringing down his gavel, the chairman said:

"The republican party is a party of liberty and it should always be glad to give a hearing on any subject. The chair hopes there will be no objection."

This brought a cheer.

Chairman Raps for Order.

Soon after Smith began reading there were cries of "louder" from both the delegates and guests.

"If those who are yelling 'louder' would keep silent perhaps the delegates from Illinois could be heard better," Moses said.

A little later there was so much confusion in the hall by reason of delegates moving about that the chairman stopped Smith and banged loudly for order.

Reading from the 1924 agriculture plank adopted by the republican convention at Cleveland Smith said that pledge then made to the farmers of America, for aid throug farmers of America, for aid through legislation remained unredeemed.

Smith would up by saying that if the party expected the support of the republican farmers of the great western and mid-western states "you are going to squarely and fairly meet this issue."

"We are through with general statements," he said.

Challenge From Minnesota.

Smith asked for a roll call on the minority plank and then Chairman Moses recognized Frank W. Murphy, delegate from Minnesota, and who long has fought for farm relief legislation.

"I am going to ask you all to think," Murphy said. "We are about to nominate a candidate for president of the United States. To nominate him in June is easy, but to elect him in November you will find will be a very difficult thing to accomplish."

"The farmers are tremendously interested and just now they are tremendously resentful. For that I am sorry. We come here pleading with you not to drive the farmers of the republican states out of their party. And I hope you will not interpret that as a threat because it is not.

"Folks, the McNary-Haugen bill is the issue within the party and you had better think seriously about it now when it is before you today. That is an issue you must meet head on and in a robust way. You cannot fool these farmers anymore with platform pledges."

This evoked a round of cheering.

"If the republican party is to live as a party of protection it must extend protection to all groups or do away with the principle," Murphy declared. "The republican party has had five years to solve the agricultural problem and it solved it so far as congress goes.

"If the republican party won't solve the agricultural question and bring the farmer into equality with other groups it ought not to live."

Murphy was given a real demonstration by the convention as he concluded with that parting shot. Many of the delegates from the agricultural states stood up cheering and yelling while others applauded vigorously.

Finally, Chairman Moses got the convention back to order by telling the spectators that there were three more speakers for the minority plank, but that if the convenion did not want to hear them it was all right.

Dan W. Turner, a delegate from Iowa, took up the argument for the minority plank.

"The farmers will not march in Kansas City in June," Turner declared, "but they will march to the polls in November. Their judgment will not be an impetuous one. They are a conservative people, but they have themselves to defend."

Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska, said the farmers challenged the administration to go further in making an industrial America at the expense of the farmer.

"This question is bigger than parties," he said. "The millions on the farms will not be submerged. We are not pleading with you. We are presenting our side of a cause."

Wants Western Candidate.

A cheer went up from the galleries when McMullen said the farmers wanted nominated a candidate for the presidency from the western states.

The argument for the minority plank was wound up by Mark Woods of Lincoln, Neb. who declared the republican party was "standing on the brink of a precipice."

"One step more in the wrong direction, and she will go over," he declared.

"I can change twelve words in that plank as it is written and it will mean three million votes."

Woods mentioned the name of Vice President Dawes in the convention for the first time and there was some cheering for General Dawes.

Representative Franklin W. Fort of New Jersey, the Hoover floor leader opened the fight against the minority plank.

He told the convention that he resented the implication that there was a contest between the industrial east and the agricultural west on the matter of equality of treatment of industry.

"The people of the east will gladly favor any legislation for the relief of the farmer in which they believe, and which they believe will be effective," he said.

"You have heard six speakers for the minority plank. Did any of them discuss what they propose? No, they discussed the politics of the situation and not the economics."

Trying Impossible.

"They are trying to do the impossible thing of making profits out of taking losses in the world market," Fort said. "The plan of the equalization fee is either a tax upon consumption or upon production. I have yet to be persuaded that either one of those taxes is economically desirable.

"You have heard here today not an economic argument but a political demand for the McNary-Haugen bill alone. We have offered them aid for cooperative marketing. We offered them a federal farm board and we offered them a reasonable loan from the treasury until they get on their feet. We offered them assistance in the distribution and marketing of their commodities.

"The proposals differ in detail but more they differ in that one great fundamental principle. The proposal in the minority report means in the end that the government will run agriculture. The majority report offers aid to the farmer until he can get on his feet."

Borah Gets In Action.

Then Senator Borah of Idaho, went into action in opposition to the minority plank.

"There is a farm problem," he said. "Indeed, it is more than a farm problem. It is a great national problem growing out of the agricultural situation. It involves the material economic welfare of the whole people. I want to say also that while there may be those who have been willing and are willing to play politics with this question, the able men who presented this matter to the committee on platform did not play politics with it. They were earnest in their presentation of a great national issue."

Senator Borah said one problem was to enable the American farmer to reach his market "without being robbed on the way" adding that experts estimated that about eight billion dollars were lost now in the present marketing system, money that should go into the pockets of the farmer.

CONGRESSMAN WURZBACH TO CONTINUE FIGHT ON CREAGER; COMMITTEEMAN WANTS POWER

(Associated Press Staff Writer.)
BY L. D. DILBECK

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—

L. B. Dilbeck

Congressman Harry Wurzbach is going to continue his fight against the Creager - dominated Texas republican organization when he returns from the national convention in which the Creager delegates were seated Wednesday.

Wurzbach remained as a spectator Thursday while the victorious delegation selected by the "regular" state convention, controlled by National Committeeman R. B. Creager, returned to the hall expecting to cast it's 26 votes for Hoover for president and start home possibly Friday.

Many of the district elected delegates, led by Wurzbach and C. C. Littleton of Fort Worth in a fruitless contest of the Greager seats, have returned to Texas.

"I am going to take up the fight again when I get back home," Mr. Wurzbach, only republican congressman from Texas said. "I don't care what they say about the merits of the contest, I believe the convention would have upheld the district elected delegates in preference to Mr. Creager's delegation picked by the state convention if the case had come up after the presidential nominee was selected. Men really with us on the principle that national delegates should be chosen by the districts voted on the other side to avoid the appearance of opposing Mr. Hoover."

The congressman is a candidate for re-election. The republican nominating convention will be in the latter part of July. Mr. Wurzbach is opposed so far by two democrats, Augustus McCloskey and A. D. Rogers of San Antonio, whom he claims the Creager organization is supporting.

"They don't want a republican congressman—he might get to distribute some of the federal patronage," Wurzbach said. "Their's is an organization existing for power."

The remainder of the convention for the Creager delegation will be largely cut and dried. There was some discussion of a choice for vice president to run with Hoover, to whom the Texas 26 votes are committed under instructions of the state convention, but Mr. Creager said no definite agreement was reached. He was endorsed for the post by the state convention.

Conventionalities

(By The Associated Press.)

A cloud of white feathers drifting down from the heights of Kansas City's tallest buildings stirred conjecture among startled pedestrians below as to whether angels, mayhap, had come to help the farmers who seek to help themselves, or whether this were a barnyard version of Manhattan's ticker-tape frenzies.

In spite of the East's so proudly vaunted superiority in matters of all-round modernity, it has not yet achieved the magic secret of hot-weather telephone booth comfort that Kansas Cityans treat as commonplace.

With the click of a closing door behind the telephoner here, a soft bur-r-r resounds above his head and an electric fan as well as an electric light is turned on automatically.

The parking problem need no longer harass the municipal authorities of the country, for Kansas City has found the solution by using roof space in the downtown district.

The Oklahoma delegation includes an "original American" delegate, Mrs. Lilah D. Lindsey, of Tulsa, who is Cherokee and Creek with part Scotch ancestry.

So orderly has been the procedure of the convention sessions to date that the hospitals set up in the hall has reported only a few scratch fingers—and a headache or two.

Optimistic over an early anjournment, the New Mexico delegation had made reservations for the trip home today.

Several hundred delegates and spectators, charmed by the display of "Mikes" on the convention platform, trooped up to them yesterday during the luncheon recess and attempted to broadcast a few words for the benefit of the folks back home. Evidently they didn't know the power had been shut off and their remarks merely drifted into the hall.

ADJOURNMENT OF GRAND JURY; MANY INDICTMENTS SHOWN

The Navarro county grand jury adjourned shortly before noon Thursday, returning fourteen indictments since beginning its sessions Monday morning after having been in recess for about a month.

The indictments returned were as follows:

Murder, 1; rape, 1; violation of the prohibition laws, 8; theft, 3; driving car while intoxicated, 1.

Will Taylor, negro, indicted for murder; Max Taylor, violation of the prohibition laws, and John Adkins, theft, were in the Navarro county jail Thursday afternoon. They were indicted by the grand jury which adjourned Thursday morning.

RICHLAND WOMAN DIED IN HOSPITAL TEMPLE WEDNESDAY

Mrs. W. S. Harlan of Richland died in a Temple hospital Wednesday and the remains reached here late Wednesday night on the eastbound Cotton Belt train. The body was taken to the family residence near Richland Thursday morning and the funeral services were held at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the residence.

The body was brought to Corsicana where interment was made Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Oakwood cemetery.

WOMEN ARE ACTIVE AMONG REPUBLICAN CONVENTION CROWD

SERIOUS BUSINESS EDUCATING DELEGATES TO THEIR DESIRES TAKEN UP

By MARY BAINBRIDGE HAYDEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

KANSAS CITY, June 14. —(AP)—Discarding yesterday's jaunty high heels for Deauville Sandals and walking shoes, the women within and without the convention walls settled down today to the serious business of "educating delegates" on pending issues and planning "carry on campaigns" for others counted by some already lost.

Mary B. Hayden

While the packed hall of delegates waited for a woman, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, chairman of the resolutions committee, to open the day's, proceedings, and muttered comments of "that's what the women do for us," were heard as the time of waiting lengthened, other members of her sex were hard at work for and against every major issue before the convention.

"There is no such thing as a woman's vote, they vote as the men do, from conviction and affiliation," said Mrs. M. M. Scranton, new national committeewoman from Pennsylvania, analyzing the situation.

"Hoover is the outstanding candidate for the women of the country," said Mrs. W. Reginald Baker, national committeewoman from New Jersey, voicing the crusaders' spirit of the "Hoover women."

"You can nominate Hoover but you can't elect him," silently responded the buttons worn by women of the "embattled farmers" group who voiced their feelings with cries of "nominate Hoover and we will vote for Smith," as they followed this husbands in a march on the convention hall.

Can't Elect Hoover.

"The farm women are desperately in earnest," said Mrs. Verna L. Hatch of Huntington, Ind., social and educational director of the Indiana farm bureau who walked, a firm and energetic figure in dark, tailored suit, at the head of the column.

"The women's fight for a prohibition enforcement plank is now regarded as won and the women's law enforcement organizations could rest on their laurels, but instead under the leadership of Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president of the W. C. T. U., they are busy perfecting plans for Houston.

"Women who are for modification or repeal, on the other hand, reply that "the fight is only just beginning."

"The other issues especially supported by women, the world court and renunciation of war treaties, a federal department of education, and the question of protective legislation for women, are still unsettled in the committee on resolutions. But the opposing forces continue their work for and against.

"I feel Borah and Smoot were both sympathetic," said Mrs. Frances G. Robertsen chairman of the industrial council of the national woman's party.

Equal Rights Near.

"I think the men are beginning to feel the time is coming when the equal rights provision will have to be put through," she added. "It is only a question of time."

The league of women voters, opposing the woman's party equal rights amendment plank, and demanding "the right of working women to actual, not theoretical, equality through protective legislation, "Wednesday held a mass meeting at a luncheon for some 300 guests.

Women legislators from several states were speakers, among them Mrs. Julia Emery of Connecticut and Mrs. James Paige, of Minneapolis. Mrs. Robert Taft of Cincinnati, daughter-in-law of the chief justice, and Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, wife of the senator from New Hampshire, also were honor guests.

On the floor of the convention Wednesday several of the newly chosen national committeewomen were noticed, actively following the proceedings.

Mrs. C. E. Rumyon, new national committeewoman from Oregon, who has just been notified of her nomination as the only woman presidential elector from her state, was seated with the governor of Oregon and Mrs. I. L. Patterson. Mrs. Rumyon has for ten years been a member of the republican state central committee.

Convention Program

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Here is today's Republican national convention program:

10 a. m. (Central Standard time) —Call to order by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, permanent chairman.

Prayer—By Rabbi Herman M. Cohen.

Presentation of platform by Resolutions committee.

Forman selection of members of national committee.

Nomination of candidates for president.

Because of the fight in prospect over the proposed farm relief plank in the final platform draft, there was some doubt whether the first ballot on presidential candidates could be taken today. Nomination speeches have to be read first for at least five candidates, including Secretary Hoover, Frank O. Lowden and Senator Watson of Indiana, Curtis of Kansas and Goff of West Virginia.

Speeches of seconding the nominations then are in order.

YOUTH IS DROWNED.

PORT ARTHUR, June 14. —(AP)—J. W. Hess, Jr., 20, of Elmira, N. Y., was drowned about 2 a. m., today when a car in which he was riding with five other young men plunged from the ferry approach on the Neches river near here. His body has not been recovered.

TWO RIGHTS DENIED.

DETROIT, June 14.—(AP)— The right of the Steel Wire Corporation of Lansing, Mich., to manufacture balloon tires exclusively in the United States was denied today in a decision by Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle in the corporation's patent infringement suit against the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio.

MINORITY REPORT FOR EQUALIZATION FEE IS PRESENTED

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—The equalization fee principle of the twice-vetoed McNary-Haugen bill constitutes the basis of the farm relief plank proposed to the Republican convention today by a minority of the resolutions committee as a substitute for the plank incorporated in the platform in its stead by a 35 to 15 vote.

Calling attention to the agricultural surplus problem but not mentioning the fee by name, the minority plank seems to put the party on record as believing "that any operations undertaken to assist farmers to meet this problem should be largely under the direction of farmers' co-operative associations, with the use of only such federal powers as are necessary to distribute the costs and losses that may be incurred in dealing with agricultural surpluses over each marketed unit of the crop whose producers are to be benefitted by such assistance."

The plank subsequently endorses "the aim and principle of thus distributing the costs of concerted action over the commodity benefitted," and pledges efforts by the party for "the perfection and support of a measure based on this principal which can receive general support and become a law.

E. A. Zube, Clarence Thomas and J. T. Smith of Purdon were in Corsicana on business Thursday.

THINK ANEMIA'S CAUSE IS DUE TO DEFICIENT DIET

The discovery of liver's efficacy in treating pernicious anemia has raised the question whether that disease is not caused by deficiency in diet, as are pellagra or rickets, and not by a poison or infection, as was formerly supposed, said Dr. James H. Means of Boston, a speaker today before a sectional meeting of the American Medical association.

Dr. Means reported that the feeding of liver to 65 pernicious anemia patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital had resulted in rapid improvement in a few days. Raw liver, cooked liver, liver extract or raw or cooked kidney all appeared to be beneficial, he said.

Dr. George H. Whipple of Rochester, N. Y., reported on experiments showing the influence of dietary factors in severe epreciemental anemia in dogs and said he had found evidence that some anemias in man were due to lack of certain elements in food.

NEW AIR LINE PLANNED.

SAN ANTONIO, June 14.—(AP)—Plans for an air mail, freight and baggage line between Mexico City and New York, via Chicago and Laredo, were outlined to the annual junior chamber of commerce convention here today by Jack Beretta of San Antonio. Beretta said that he would go to Mexico City to confer with Mexican authorities on schedules for traffic between Mexico City and this country.

MUSSOLINI SERVES NOTICE DEMANDING FULL REPARATION

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, June 14—(AP)—Premier Mussolini served another peremptory note on the Jugoslav government today demanding reparation for a fresh attack on the Italian consulate at Sebanico during which Italian officials were stoned.

Several weeks ago there were extensive riots in Jugoslavia against Italy, students demonstrating against the Jugoslav government's plan to adopt a treaty which would give Italian citizens the right to hold land within thirty miles of the Jugoslav coast along the Adriatic.

After a sharp note from the Italian premier, the Jugoslav government made an apology to Italy for the disorders and promised full reparation for the damage caused Italians.

Mr. Mahoney is presenting the matter to surrounding towns and will induce them to enter contestants in the revue to be staged here, it was stated by Robert Cooksey, secretary of the Natatorium, Thursday. A large number of contestants, among them winners in other pageants of beauty, will be entered here, it is stated and a carnival and vaudeville will be held in connection during the three days of entertainment.

FREE ADMISSION TO MOVIES ENDS STUDENT RUSHES

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(AP)— Ann Arbor theater managers finally have devised a plan to eliminate student rushes through their movie houses after each important Michigan athletic victory.

Last year when the Wolverine athletes scored one victory after another, the students made rush after rush through the movie theaters. Finally the situation became serious, and to arbitrate the theater managers offered free admission each time Michigan won a major athletic championship. The offer was accepted.

Since then Michigan has won but one maior championship. That was in baseball.

High Lights Republican Platform Read Thursday

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Here are the high spots of the platform presented to the Republican national convention today by its resolutions committee:

AGRICULTURE — Reorganization of marketing system on sounder and more economical lines and creation of farm board with power to set up farmer owned and controlled corporations to prevent and control surpluses through orderly distribution.

PROHIBITION — Observance and vigorous enforcement of eighteenth amendment.

DAUGHTER QUEEN VICTORIA DISLIKED HER OWN REARING

LONDON—(AP) — The Victorian method of bringing up children had its faults, the daughter of Queen Victoria herself testifies.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, fourth daughter of Britain's sainted queen, speaking before the Church of England Waifs and Strays society, urged the cultivation of individuality.

"Luckily," the princess, now 80 years old, said, "the habit of moulding all children to the same pattern has gone out of fashion. It was deplorable.

"I know because I suffered from it."

The princess, after being for many years the constant attendant of her mother, asserted her own individuality by marrying a commoner, the then Marquis of Lorne, later Duke of Argyll.

REPUBLICANS GET KICK OUT WRANGLE OVER SECOND PLACE

DAWES, MOSES AND DENEEN LEADING IN DISCUSSION FOR VICE PRESIDENCY

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Determined to get at least one kick out of the convention with the presidential race virtually settled, republican delegates were making the most of their opportunity today to wrangle over a vice presidential candidate, and Dawes, Moses and Deneen semed to be uppermost in the discussion.

M. Stephenson

But it was all in the discussion stage as the procedings moved slowly toward selection of the presidential nominee and until Herbert Hoover cashes in his winning stack of delegates there appears to be little likelihood of a crystalization of sentiment on one man for second place.

Almost every state banner carried the flag of a vice presidential candidate and some states were worried with two or three on their hands. While the mass of delegates was in the mood to go ahead and have a good round of balloting on the vice presidency there were a number of leaders anxious to wait and find out Hoover's position.

"Strictly neutral," was the word which went out from Hoover headquarters. Attempts to get an inkling from the commerce secretary in Washington have failed. Hope is held out, however, that he may indicate a choice once his nomination is recorded. For that reason, New York along with many other states, are waiting.

MAN IDENTIFIED AS SLAYER OF MAN LUFKIN RECENTLY

HUMBLE, June 14.—(AP)—A man was identified here today by Mrs. John Laing as the attacker who killed her husband and then beat her and her two small sons at Lufkin several weeks ago.

The man identified was one of three brought here from Houston, where they had been arrested on a "tip," the source of which officers refused to divulge. Mrs. Laing said she was "positive" he was the man who was beating her husband over the head, with a club when she awakened, and who later attacked her with the same weapon.

Officers said charges would be filed at Lufkin.

HOUSTON, June 14.—(AP)—Three men held as suspects in the murder of John Laing, Houston paperhanger, and the beating of his wife and two small sons at Lufkin several weeks ago, today were to be taken to Humble, where Laing's family was to see them. Mrs. Laing and her children are living with relatives in Humble.

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP)—Corn suffered new setbacks in price early today, outdoing the season's low price record for September and December deliveries. Ideal weather throughout th corn belt led to continued selling pressure on the part of the holders.

Opening 1-8c to 1c lower, corn soon underwent a further drop. Wheat and oats were easier, with wheat starting 1-2c off to 3-8c up, and subsequently averaging lower. Provisions held about steady.

Wheat closed firm 1-2 to 2 1-4c net higher; corn at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 1-8c up, oats unchanged to 1-4 to 3-8c higher, and provisions varying from 1 to 10c decline to 5c advance.

New York Cotton Steady.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 8 points in response to relatively firm cables and reports of rains in the lower Mississippi valley. Initial prices here were hardly a full reaction to the firmness abroad, and houses with Liverpool connections were buyers. There also seemed to be some trade demand as well as covering or commission house buying.

Prices worked up to 22.52 for October shortly after the opening, but seemed to ataract realizing at this figure, and the market was 5 points off from the best at the end of the first hour.

Offerings increased on liquidation by early buyers disappointed by failure of bullish features to create a more aggressive demand.

October broke to 20.28, with active months generally selling about 12 to 18 points lower. The volume of business tapered off at the decline, and the market at mid-day was quiet at rallies of several points from the lowest.

Futures closed very steady, 12 to 10 points higher; spot steady; middling 21.00.

New Orleans Cotton Firm.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—(AP)—The cotton market had a firm opening in response to higher Liverpool cables. First trades showed gains of 3 to 6 points and prices continued to improve after the start on early reports of much rain in the belt and October traded to 19.99 and December 19.97, or 5 to 7 points above the previous close.

Fears of a bearish census bureau consumption report due later in the day brought out some trade selling which carried prices back to yesterday's closing levels.

Although the consumption total of 57,710 proved somewhat larger than expected the market exhibited only momentary strength and then turned downward on the belief that the larger mill consumption meant the piling up of unsold stock of cotton goods as the May demands was disappointing. July traded off to 20.00, October 19.79, and December 19.77 or 19 to 21 points below the early highs and 13 to 15 points under the previous close.

PLATFORM MOULDERS MUST LEAVE FARM RELIEF BEFORE GENERAL CONVENTION BODY

By BYRON PRICE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—Unable to negotiate a compromise by long negotiation behind committee doors, the Republican national convention faced the farm relief issue in the open today as party leaders drove on toward the nomination of a ticket and final adjournment.

Byron Price

As it came to convention floor for action by the delegates themselves the party platform outlined a farm program minus all mention of the equalization fee or the McNary-Haugen bill. It had been adopted in that form last last night by the platform committee by a wide majority, but over the unyielding opposition of members from the Lowden farm states, who at once announced an appeal to the convention itself.

New Hoover Strength.

Final settlement of this and perhaps one or two lesser platform disputes will clear the way for the nomination of Herbert Hoover whose band wagon today had picked up the whole of New York's 90 delegates, heretofore divided in their preferences, swelling the commerce secretary's first-ballot strength to a point nearer to two-thirds of the convention than the simple majority needed to nominate. So compelling had become the movement into the Hoover camp that the candidates whose forces had been allies against him—Lowden, Curtis, Watson and Goff—were reported to be considering whether to permit their names to go before the convention.

The declaration of party principles sent in by the platform committee also included Senator Borah's "bone dry" plank, declaring not only for enforcement of law in general but mentioning by name the prohibition amendment. No such mention was made in the platform four years ago. A long fight also developed in committee on this proposal, but when the opposition was voted down they gave no sign that they would appeal.

Moses Gets Action.

With a new and purposeful chairman, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, the party conviave was prepared today to move along at accelerated speed. Just a taste of what the peppery New Hampshire senator means by his announced desire to get on with the business in hand was provided last night, when he convened and the recessed an evening session within the space of one minute, and did it all three minutes ahead of the time set for convening, at that. The session which thus was held in name only was intended for discussion of the platform, but the committee was not yet ready, and there was no other business on the calendar.

Calling the convention together at 10 a. m., party pilots under the captaincy of Senator Moses hoped to have the platform fight over with in time to hear nominating speeches and take the decisive ballot for president before night. Should they fail in this purpose, a night session is in prospect. In any case, an overnight recess probably will intervene before the selection of a vice president, and the final adjournment is expected tomorrow.

Seek Vice-President.

Although no agreement on a vice presidential nominee is expected until first place on the ticket has been definitely voted to Mr. Hoover and he has been given opportunity to express any preference he may have in mind, talk of a running mate for him continued to grow in volume today with a score or more of names in the picture.

It appeared certain that a strong block of votes would be brought together for the renomination of Vice President Dawes, but Senator Deneen of Illinois as well as Senator Moses and others likewise were being talked by some of the most influential of the Hoover leaders.

Among many of those who have had a hand in guiding the Hoover movement along there is a fixed belief that the man chosen for vice president should be a seasoned and capable campaigner. Mr. Hoover is not expected to take to the stump very actively, and the man whose name is linked with his on the ticket will be looked to, in all likelihood, to carry the brunt of such forensic combat as the campaign may develop.

J. W. Murrell and J. C. Blackburn of Richland were in the city Thursday on business.

D. J. Martin of Retreat was a business visitor in the city Thursday.

HOWE CONVICTED HIGHWAY ROBBERY BY ARKANSAS COURT

MAN WHO ESCAPED FROM CORSICANA JAIL FACES MANY OTHER CHARGES

EL DORADO, Ark., June 14.—A jury in Union County Circuit court after remaining out less than fifteen minutes late Wednesday returned a verdict of guilty in trial of C. C. Howe, formerly of Queen City, Texas, and Clint Smith of Bonham, Texas, on charges of robbery in connection with a series of holdups in the Rainbow City oil field on the night of May 23, and fixed their punishment at the maxium of twenty-one years each.

The men, who were indicted jointly by the grand jury Tuesday still have twenty-five more indictments in connection with the robberies. Judge L. S. Britt will pass sentence in the first case Thursday morning, and trial on the other cases will begin. The specific charge in this trial was for the robbery of J. L. Brantley and his crew of $45.

Howe and Smith were arrested near Shreveport two days after the robbery and were returned here to face trial. Howe escaped from the Corsicana, Texas, jail in May, where he was awaiting a decision by the State Supreme Court on an appeal from a ninety-nine-year sentence for robbing a bank at Richland, Texas. Smith escaped from the State penitentiary at Huntsville, Texas, where he was serving a term of thirty-four years for robbing the bank at Otto. The men have been accused of robbing the bank of Leonard, Texas, since their escape. Governor Parnell of Arkansas has granted requisition for their return to Texas, but it is not known whether they will be returned there or sent to the Arkansas penitentiary to serve their terms here first.

NEED OF AIRPORT HERE IS STRESSED BEFORE CIVITANS

PROGRESS OF AVIATION OUTLINED IN ADDRESS THURSDAY BY FRANK LEMON

Needs of an airport in Corsicana and the progress of aviation in recent months occupied the Civitans at the regular meeting of the club at the Navarro Hotel Thursday at noon. Frank Lemon, secretary-treasurer of the Corsicana Flying Club was the principal speaker.

Misses Era Worden and Wynett Barnett, advance agents for the Redpath-Horner Chautauqua, presented the features of the programs to the club and urged the purchase of season tickets, pointing out that all of the money for season tickets went to help the local organization.

O. M. Boynton, president of the Lions Club, invited the Civitans to meet with the Lions next Monday at the hotel to hear the address of H. L. Fogleman, nationally known expert on salesmanship. The club voted to move their meeting date for next week from Thursday to Monday and attend the special luncheon.

Jack Cunningham, chairman of the program committee for the week, then presented Frank Lemon as the principal speaker.

Pointing out that air mail routes were covering more than 22,000 miles daily in thirty-one states, the speaker asserted that aviation was making such rapid strides that it was difficult to keep in touch with the latest. More than 6,000 miles of lighted airways have been built with about 4,000 more under construction. He pointed out that in over a million miles of flying over airmail routes last year, there was only one fatality.

Railroads Interested.

Taking up the advent of the railroads into the aviation field, he pointed out the combination of the Santa Fe, Pennsylvania lines and several airplane companies on a Los Angeles to New York route that would halve the time distance between the cities. He asserted that plans were also under way now for a competitive line between San Francisco and New York by the Southern Pacific and other interests.

He quoted the general passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific as saying that the road had been carrying passengers by plane daily for sometime. With almost forty million miles of flying last year, only 139 accidents were reported with 108 fatalities; the majority of the fatalities being blamed on unlicensed pilots with unidentified ships.

Lemon pointed out that more than 100 flying schools had been established with long waiting lists for each of them; and that almost every town had its flying club that was teaching from 10 to 100 to fly, such as the Corsicana Flying Club. Taking up the needs of an airport in Corsicana, he stated that airmail officials told Corsicana months ago that they could secure the airmail route to Houston if they would provide a landing field Nothing was done and Waco secured the route. He recounted the complaint of an army flyer several weeks ago who was compelled to fly over the city for almost an hour trying to find a flying field while coming to the aid of a brother aviator.

He also called attention to the Corsicana squadron of the Aviation Cadets of America which has been organized, with the purpose of getting ground school training in aviation.

Lemon closed with an urgent appeal for an airport, pointing out that there were eight planes which made their headquarters in Corsicana at this time.

Four Candidates Want Names Placed Before Convention

KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP)—The four presidential candidates opposing Herbert Hoover's nomination, calling themselves the "allies," decided today after conferences, to have their names placed in nomination in the face of almost certain defeat.

Some of the candidates favored withdrawing their nominating speeches and retiring from the race before the balloting started, but today the candidates, Watson, Goff, Curtis and Lowden, agreed to go forward with their original program of having their names placed before the convention.

COOLIDGE SUMMER CAPITAL INVOLVED IN ELECTION ROW

PRESIDENT WILL RUN INTO POLITICAL SITUATION DESPITE VACATION

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 14.—(AP)—Superior, the soon-to-be "summer capital," today found itself involved in a bitter election dispute, with Mayor Fred Baxter and the police on one side, and sheriff's deputies with a court order on the other.

The deputies yesterday went to the city clerk's office, demanding possession of ballots cast Tuesday on the question of a change in the form of city government. They acted under a circuit court order issued after W. J. Sleeman had made an affidavit to the effect that the ballots in the city clerk's office were "accessible to the mayor."

Sleeman and Mayor Baxter had been opposing leaders at the election which sought to determine whether the present commission type of government should be retained or replaced by a form of government which would transfer much power from the mayor to councilmen.

Who won the election has not been determined, each side claiming victory.

The sheriff's deputies were met in the clerk's office by the mayor, who refused to turn over the ballots. A threat by the officers to arrest the mayor for contempt of court resulted in a call to the chief of police. Mayor Baxter, the chief of police and the city attorney finally conferred after which permission was given the deputies to take the ballots, with the provision that two policemen should go along "to see that the ballots actually are locked up."

CHALLENGE SOUNDED AS ADMINISTRATION BACKERS RULE MEET

Nary-Haugen bill, went on to warn his fellow delegates that "you cannot fool the farmer and more with platform pledges; while others, including Gov. McMullen of Nebraska not only asked for a "real farm plank," but advocated also the selection of a Middle Western candidate for president.

BY BYRON PRICE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

CONVENTION HALL, KANSAS CITY, June 14.—(AP) — Advancing with swinging stride toward the nomination of a ticket and final adjournment by noon tomorrow, the Hover majority in the republican national convention today rallied in overwhelmng numbers to repeal a final, spectacular attack by western insurgents and members of the McNary-Haugen bloc of an administration party platform omitting mention of the equalization fee.

In a floor fight of real proportions, the dissenters made repeated sallies at the steadfast ranks of the Coolidge-Hover forces, with the farm relief plank as their central objective. Linked as it was with the protest of the allied candidates against Hoover himself as the party candidate, the farm plank warfare completely overshadowed a lesser dispute over the prohibition plank.

LaFollette Takes Lead.

Young Robert M. LaFallette of Wisconsin, followed in the footsteps of a father whose insurgency spread its record during his lifetime on the history of a whole string of republican conventions, took the lead in the assault on the tentative platform draft submitted by Smoot of Utah, chairman of the platform committee. Offering a complete platform of his own, in which farm relief took the place of greatest prominence, the Wisconsin senator was smothered under a chorus of "noes" after the convention had paid him the personal tribute of a rousing ovation at the end of his speech. He did not ask for a roll call.

The second major attack was launched under leadership of Earl C. Smith of the Lowden-pledged Illinois delegation who spoke for a minority plank supported by fifteen members of the platform committee, and approving the twice-vetoed equalization fee for agriculture. It was this proposal which precipitated a division of the convention all along the line, between the Hoover and Coolidge delegates supporting the presidential veto, and the delegates of the allied forces standing out against the Hoover majority.

A Fighting Speech.

The fighting speech of La Follette was one of the most colorful of the convention In a manner of delivery reminiscent of his father, "Bob" the elder, the young senator kept the attention of every delegate as he pleaded for the policies of the insurgent Wisconsin republicans. At one point, when he mentioned President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill, the speaker was showered with ironic applause from the administration delegates, led by the Massachusetts delegation in the front row just before the speaker's stand.

"It is so unusual for a delegate from Wisconsin to receive applause in a republican convention," he replied, smiling down in Massachusetts, "that I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

No reply was made to the LaFollette speech, the convention voting overwhelmingly an instant later to reject out of hand his minority report.

Smith laid down what sounded like a direct challenge to the administration when he said that if the party hoped for success at the polls in November, it must go further than the majority had gone in the tentative platform draft.

"If you expect the support of the republican farmers of the great republican middle western states, you must face this issue fairly and squarely," he said. "We are through with generalities."

WURZBACH WAGES LOSING FIGHT FOR TEXAS DELEGATES

CONTEST WILL BE HEARD BY CONVENTION; FURIOUS BATTLE TUES. NIGHT

By L. B. DILBECK
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

KANSAS CITY, June 13.—(AP)—Waged furiously and loudly through the credentials committee, the battle over seating of committeeman R. B. Creager's convention-picked Texas republican delegation moved Wednesday to the floor of the national ocnvention.

After arguments lasting past Tuesday midnight, the credentials committee voted 34 to 15 for seating the Creager delegation as recommended by the national executive committee. Congressman Harry Wurzbach, contesting the seats in behalf of delegates elected by congresisonal districts, said the decision would be appealed to the convention.

Wurzbach's final move carried with it an unanswered challenge from former Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin Creager counsel, that the congressman demand a change in the national rules providing now for selection of district delegates by state conventions. The Creager case rested mainly on these rules.

Indianan is Heard.

With a booming voice and waving arms Congressman Albert H. Vestel of Indiana, appealed to the credentials committee to preserve what he held to be the old party custom of district election of delegates and "help crucify the party in the south by removing the districts' incentive to vote."

He argued that since the Texas law does not prohibit election of delegates by congressional districts, this custom should be supported by the national convention as a Republican principle dating back to the historic Garfield precedent.

"Did a Democratic state that never elected but one Republican congressman, Mr. Wurzbach, pass a law to tell the sovereign Republican party how to destroy itself in Texas?" Vestal shouted. He ridiculed the idea that delegates "800 miles away" could go to a state convention and vote for national delegates to supplant Congressman Wurzbach in his own district.

Scoffs at Opinion.

He also scoffed an opinion from Attorney General Claude Pollard of Texas to Eugene Nolte, state chairman, construing the law as the Creager faction sees it.

"God pity the time,' the impassioned Indiana orator commiserated, when the Republican party takes the opinion of a Democratic attorney general in a ruling practically disenfranchising a majority of the party men in the districts."

He admitted under questioning of members of committee that Texas laws made no specific provision for election of delegates by districts.

"No state has the right," he said, however, "to pass a law telling the party how to elect delegates. It would be like passing a law telling a Methodist conference how it should proceed with election of officers."

The vote by which Wurzbach lost was on a motion to substitute the names of the delegate and alternate elected by the First District for the convention elected delegates enrolled by the national executive committee. This was after a move to substitute the Wurzbach delegates at large for the Creager quartette was lost.

Wurzbach is Mild.

Given ten minutes to argue the cases of the remaining 17 districts, Wurzbach took the floor, mild-mannered and gracious in tone, in contrast to the vehement expostulations of Vestal and Lenroot.

"To say that the law strictly binds the party in Texas would be to put the power of dictation in an unfriendly legislature," Wurzbach said. He was voted down again, 32 to 15.

Lenroot centered his argument around a declaration that the Republican party in 1916 adopted a rule that a state convention can seat its district delegates if the state law so provides. He said Attorney General Claude Pollard's opinion is as binding on the Democratic party procedure as on the Republican, and cited a telegram from Chairman D. W. Wilcox of the state Democratic executive committee relating how the state convention at Beaumont elected the district delegates.

Wurzbach answered with this explanation: "The Democratic convention nominating committee only refused district elected delegates not suitable to it, but did not attempt to substitute its own judgment for that of the district, letting the latter try again until a suitable man was found."

Quarrel With Party.

Lenroot insisted that Wurzbach's "quarrel is not with us or the attorney general, but with the national Republican party because of its rules."

Wurzbach made capital of newspaper stories quoting Creager as saying the state convention could elect all 26 delegates from one district if it so chose.

"I think I'll give those gentlemen a chance to elect another kind of Republican from my 14th district," the congressman said.

The hearing was in the huge, richly furnished Shrine Temple. Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general, presided with a firm and peremptory gaval.

Both Creager delegates and the contesting delegates elected from the districts crowded into the hearing room. Creager with his cane and black threaded nose glasses sat confidently on one side of the room with Nolte, Major Leonard Withington, secretary of the delegation, and other members. Congressman Wurzbach and his allies, including William (Gooseneck Bill) McDonald, negro Republican leader of Fort Worth, one of the contesting delegates at large, were seated on the other side.

Wild Scene Re-enacted.

Riotous scenes attending the split of the state convention at Dallas when C. C. Littleton, another contesting delegate at large, was arrested, were re-enacted for the committee from a statement of the cause of action read from one of the protestant briefs.

Reviewing the history of the disputed election laws passed in 1905, Vestal declared that "Texas is the only state in which it was ever held that district delegates should be elected by the state convention."

Delegates were elected by the state convention."

Delegates were elected by the districts in 1908 and in 1912, when the Chicago national convention construed the law and upheld district elections, Vestal said. The same system was used the next two times, but in 1924, no district conventions were held because there was no opposition to Coolidge, he explained. Instead the delegates were selected in district caucuses at the state convention that year.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—A non-stop flight from New York City to Mexico City will be attempted by Captain Emilio Carranza, Mexican army aviator, as soon as he completes a visit to New York, he announced here today.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—With its anxieties for the safety of Captain Emilio Carranza quieted and its preliminary reception out of the way, Washington turned today to a round of entertainment for the Mexican good-will aviator who returned his country's compliments for the visit of Colonel Lindbergh to Mexico City in December.

Sophisticated by its long contact with noted fliers, the capital nevertheless, had a joyous welcome for the dapper 22-year-old pilot from the sister republic to the south who fought his way through fog and storm and made a forced landing in North Carolina, 320 miles away, under perilous circumstances.

After a long sleep Carranza was fit and ready for the program arranged in his honor including the laying of a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington national cemetery and, accompanied by Ambassador Tellez, a visit with President Coolidge.

CHAMBER COMMERCE OF ELECTRA AIDING FARMERS OF SECTOR

ELECTRA, June 12.—(AP)—The Electra Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture has completed the distribution of 2,000 bushels of cotton seed among farmers of Electra trade area who twice within five days suffered from disastrous storms.

Sunday night, June 3, practically one-half of all the cotton planted in this section was destroyed in a terrific rainstorm which beat the plants into the ground and covered them with from one to three inches of hard packed soil. Thursday night, June 7, an electric storm sent hot blasts of wind, with an accompaniment of sand and pebbles which seared and cut off all cotton and feed stuff left by the previous storm.

Less than 12 hours after the second storm a meeting of bankers, business men and farmers was held at Electra and a movement started to obtain cotton seed to replant the fields laid waste.

Jesse Burrow of Powell is improving after a recent operation.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Odom had a baby girl born to them at the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic Tuesday morning.

Mrs. L. E. Phelps of Blooming Grove continues to improve at the Navarro County Hospital following a recent operation.

A World-Wanderer's Memories of Signs of the Sway of Cross

A Little Study of the Allegiances that Hold Men; With Incidents from Far and Near—The One Way Out of the World's Present Muddle

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS

When a person grows up to the point of having formed the habit of thinking things over, he is pretty sure to give thought to the way human beings have grounded themselves under some allegiance or other. This means that he ponders the big social question, which concerns classes. He sees small clusters who call themselves "Society," or the aristocracy. He sees others who label themselves "the working class!" and these are greatly subdivided. Another major classification is by races and by nationalities. Religions also create sharply-defined groups.

Thinking further into this theme, a man may find himself looking for the master allegiance. What is the tie which binds together the greatest number of people? Straightway that trail leads to a hill outside the wall of an ancient oriental city, on which stands three crosses; with curious and contemptuous crowds gathered about, to witness the execution of three condemned criminals. Interest centers in the middle Figure, for He is a personality whose fame has been long upon the lips af the nation.

Every bystander, and even the callous Roman legionairies, to whom the work of crucifying criminals is merely a part of the day's routine, know that this Nazarene, named Jesus, was no theif or murderer or disturber of the peace; and that He is being done to death because of the jealousy of the priests and Pharisees, who raised such a rabble and riot against Him that the slack-backed Roman governor, Pilate, though it easier to lend an innocnet man to death than to withstand an ecclesiastical and jingoistic intrigue which might hamper his career. Party and priestly "politics" nailed the central victim to His cross.

Once Forsaken, Now Followed

Still thinking through this question of what most unites mankind, your average person confronts this paradox of the ages. That lonely central cross, with two thieves for companions, and few weeping women and one fearsome man the only friends in sight, holds the figure who today has the greatest following on earth. Forsaken, shamed, despised, maltreated — His death a mere item of the daily programme of Roman "justice" in an outlying province of the empire —that Crucified One has become the greatest of all leaders of human hearts. No king or emperor or conquerer ever had so many adherents as that Victim of Jewish hate and of Roman prudence.

Here is the master anomaly of time. The shameful cross itself, once uttermost badge of ignominy, is today the world's dearest symbol. Great nations fly it upon their flags; it is the emblem of organized international benevolence. Beautiful women wear it jewelled upon their bosoms. It marks millions of graves as a token of hope. Upon myriads of steeples and domes it catches the first glint of sunrise. Above modern cities it flashes at night in electric lights. Armies have followed it to battle. Martyrs have pressed it to their dying lips. A chorus, like the sound of mighty waters, is everywhere singing

"In the Cross of Christ I glory."

After all the classes and groups and orders and allegiances of mankind have been considered, this marvel remains true, that the Crucified Christ has the greatest following of all, and the fellowship of His friends is the largest and most potent body in existence. He, lifted up, is drawing all men unto Him. That the supreme loyalty of hundreds of millions of men, women and children, who are to be found in all the other lesser classifications of life, is to the slain Saviour abides as the most meaningful fact of all time.

Diadems of Devotion.

We spell Science with a big S nowadays; but its claims do not disturb the fidelity of humanity to the Christ who was crucified, whose love is beyond the compass of science, and who is Himself life's only satisfactory explainer and incentive and reward. Machinery and invention are creating a new material civilization; but the friends of Jesus simply say, "He hath put all things under His feet." Life has become intricate and crowded and rapid in our day! nevertheless, myriads of hearts can murmur, "He is our peace."

Let us make no mistake here. Jesus Christ is still Lord of life. We have but to look about us to see the diadems of devotion that are offered to Him. Memory pictures for me a group of ecstatic-faced Roman Catholic nuns, in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, waiting in rapt expectancy for the Good Friday services to begin. A strong, intellectual woman in a Seattle mission seemed to be seeing her Beloved face to face. Dwight L. Moody, standing on Little Round Top, Northfield, opening his heart about Jesus to a group of friends, wore a radiance such as Moses carried down from the Mount. A rugged Quaker, in the Fourth Day Meeting for Worship at the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting, looked as one who was holding Communion with Christ. A saintly Episcopal bishop of Little Rock, Arkansas; Pandita Ramabai, in India; Pastor Kim, in Korea: so mounts the long roll of remembered faces of those to whom Jesus was more real than the friends in their physical presence. No man may number the vast company of those for whom has been answered the prayer,

"Lord Jesus, make Thyself to me,
A living, bright reality."

On the Cross-Throne.

This quiet contemplation of the present dominion of Christ over human hearts, as contrasted with the shameful spectacle of the crucifixion—when the sacrifice of Jesus was so lightly rearded as to be made the occasion for patching up political differences between Pilate and Herod, and between Pilate and the Pharisees—leads into many fields of thought.

I am recalling a Cossack captain in the Caucasus, amidst Russia's revolution and the tottering of his world, who so simply told me, the American war correspondent, what the Cross meant to him; I think of an evening in Rumania, spent in Queen Marie's boudoir, surrounded by old crosses which she collects as her hobby, when the conversation drifted into a discussion of the spiritual significance of the world upheaval; and I remember an evening walk in the garden of the Greek Patriarchate, at Constantinople, in talk with the Patriarch, soon to be disposed, and the expression of spiritual exaltation that came to his face as I wished him inner peace amidst his outer turmoil. Verily, the trail of the triumphs of the Cross leads far, and into realms high and low.

The magnetism of the Cross-uplifted Redeemer is the marvel of human experience. The good rules all realms. The symbol of defeat has become the sign of sovereignty. History's greatest reversal is here. The Cross is now the one throne universal empire. Christ is today alluring and holding the devotion of countless human hearts in every land and clime.

In this sovereignty of the Saviour is surest hope for our day's despondency. Laws and learning may fail to make right what is wrong with our times; but obedience to Christ can do it. For His dear sake men and women will do what they will not do from fear of force or prospect of pleasure. The shortest, surest way out of the morass into which society has stumbled is to lift up the light of the Cross. In following Christ, the world comes to righteousness and peace. They way home leads over Calvary's crest, where once the Son of God died that man might live.

PLAY TOURNAMENT WILL OPEN SEASON AT BARRY SATURDAY

PROCEEDS OF PLAYS SPONSORED BY HARVARD PLANS FOR EQUIPMENT

The Navarro County Harvard Play tournament, sponsored by various schools, clubs and P. T. A.'s of this county will open the summer season Saturday night at Barry.

Mrs. W. F. Harvard, dramatic supervisor and district manager of the company, introducing this plan has secured the services of Mr. Robert James Poindexter, as assistant director for the summer months.

Mr. Poindexter is a young man of excellent training for this work, and was formerly with the Dallas Little Theatre group. For the past two years he has been in charge of the Wortham Little Theatre.

Mr. Poindexter presents the Barry cast in "Old Oaken Bucket," by Mary W. Parker, a three act drama of laughter and tears.

It is interesting to note that in the cast of fourteen characters and some extras, practically all are college trained men and women experienced in work of this type.

"Old Oaken Bucket" will be presented at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night in the Barry high school auditorium.

Proceeds of all plays given under auspices of Navarro County Harvard plan go for playground equipment for schools of Navarro county. Large crowds mean more chances at bonus offer for each town. The town having largest receipts for all five performances of the season, extending over several months time will receive some free equipment for the school.

Former U.T. Prof Pleads Guilty to Making of Beer

AUSTIN, June 12.—(AP)—Kindred McLeary, until recently an adjunct professor of architecture at the University of Texas and creator of the painting, "Cotton," now on exhibit with others here, pleaded guilty and was fined $200 in federal court here Tuesday on charges of manufacturing and possession of intoxicating liquor.

Officers alleged they found 146 pints of beer and apparatus for its manufacture, when they raided his apartment March 26.

BIG CELEBRATION IS PLANNED HERE FOR NINETEENTH

Plans are being completed for one of the largest "Juneteenth" celebrations ever held in Navarro county, June 19-21. The colored people of Corsicana are arranging programs of speeches, baseball games and athletic events of all kinds.

An Emancipation program will be held at the Municipal ball park June 19. A big barbecue will precede the baseball game between the Black Oilers and the Greenville Oil Burners at 4 o'clock.

Special rates have been secured over the Southern Pacific and Cotton Belt for those who will attend the celebration from the surrounding country.

Would Consolidate School Districts

WORTHAM, June 12.—(Spl)—Consolidation of the Rushing common school district of Navarro county with the Wortham independent school district has been proposed for an election in Wortham Saturday, June 30, Dr. Fred W. Horn, president of the school board, has announced in an official order calling the election.

W. S. Evans and C. H. Lewis were appointed judges of the election.

CHIEF STRONGHEART TELLS STORY EARLY LIFE OF INDIANS

A fascinatingly told story of the early life of the Indians, their customs, traditions, and beliefs, will be set before the people of this community on the third night of the Premier program, when Chief Nipo Strongheart, grandson of a Yakima chief that fought against the white man's advance into the west, and himself born and brought up on the Yakima reservation, will tell the tale of the "vanishing race" as only one who is vitally concerned in his subject can tell it.

Makes Imposing Appearance.

Scarcely middle aged, handsome in the native costume of the Indian, well educated and experienced as a platform lecturer, the Chief will make an imposing appearance as he pictures for his audience the life of the Indian before the arrival of the white man on these shores. He will describe the changes that took place as the red man was driven westward, and the decline of this once great race.

Strongheart was educated at Carlisle after going to school at Yakima. He has delved into the traditions of Indians and knows from association and tales handed down of their early years.

Chief Strongheart was the first "American" to enlist in the provisional regiment which the late Colonel Roosevelt recruited in 1917 for the purpose of fighting overseas. Because of his education and his ability to grip throngs of men with his slightly guttural English he was placed in the recruiting service, and up and down, North and South, East and West, he went tirelessly, calling the "pale-faces" to arms. The magic of his plea swept thousands into khaki. Then the war ended.

Chief Strongheart makes an eloquent plea for his people, appearing in the costume of his tribe, the Yakima Indians of Washington.

Chautauqua opens in Corsicana, Thursday, June 14th, high school auditorium. Season tickets now on sale.

ations or associations to prevent and control surpluses through orderly distribution.

The platform contains a sweeping endorsement of the administration and congress and pledges to maintain and continue the policies of President Coolidge.

Prohibition Plank.

The much-discussed topic of prohibition, which, like the farm question, proved a problem in the resolutions committee discussions, is disposed of in a law enforcement plank pledging the party and its nominees to the "observance and vigorous enforcement" of the eighteenth amendment.

"The agricultural problem is national in scope," the farm plank declares, "and, as such, is recognized by the republican party which pledges its strength and energy to the solution of the same."

The plank promises "every assistance in the reorganization of the marketing system on sounder and more economical lines and, where diversification is needed, government financial assistance during the period of transition."

The farm question also is touched upon in the tariff plank, which declares a "protective tariff is as vital to American agriculture as it is to American manufacturing."

"The republican party," it continues, "believes that the home market, built up under the protective policy, belongs to the American farmers, and it pledges its support of legislation which will give this market to him to the full extent of his ability to supply it."

Praises Mellon and Coolidge.

President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon are singled out for individual praise by the platform makers.

"We endorse without qualifications the record of the Coolidge administration," the platform reads. The record of the treasury is described as "unrivalled and unsurpassed."

Through a long recital of problems and developments of five years, the platform reviews with satisfaction dispositions made by the president and congress.

Taxes, tariff, foreign policy, merchant marine, railroads and flood control pass in review as problems met and solved to the satisfaction of the party leaders.

Stabilization of the coal industry, prevention of excessive use of injunctions in labor disputes, rigid enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the drafting of resources in time of war are outstanding on the program the party mapped out for the next four years.

Declaring for "honesty in government," and for the appointment of officials of unquestioned integrity, the platform deplored "the fact that any official has ever fallen from this high standard and that certain American citizens of both parties have so far forgotten their duty as citizens as to traffic in national interests for private gain."

Tax Reduction.

Noting that practically all of the war taxes have been eliminated, a pledge is given for futher reduction as conditions permit. Deduction of the public debt by $6,411,000,000 in seven years is cited with a declaration that the party will continue to reduce the debt.

The policy of the administration in Nicaragua and China is endorsed with the assertion that American naval and military forces are being used in these countries to protect American lives and interests.

The platform approves the foreign policy of the president generally, making special reference to the course followed in the settlement of foreign debts. It also deems as satisfactory the solution of war claims, and reaffirms its opposition to membership in the League of Nations. It calls attention, however, to a policy of cooperation in "the humanitarian and technical work" of the league.

The tariff act of 1922 is declared to have justified itself in the expansion of foreign trade.

Pledges to Labor.

It is asserted that American labor enjoys the highest wage and living standard in the world, and freedom in wage contracts and the right of collective bargaining is the party's pledge to the wage earner. It expresses a belief that the injunctive cudgel has been wielded too freely in labor disputes and has "given rise to a serious question for legislation."

Praising the administration for meeting the Mississippi flood emergency in such a manner that "a great loss of life was prevented," the platform points to passage by congress of a bill authorizing $325,000,000 for the construction of works to prevent a recurrence.

The party goes on record in favor of the drafting of every resource, "which may contribute to success," in time of war, asserting that the country demands provision for the drafting of essential commodities, material resources and services, whether used in actual warfare or private activity.

The 1924 campaign of the party is described as having been economic, honest and decent with the expenses carefully budgeted and showing a surplus instead of a deficit at the close. Assurance is given that "there will not be any relaxing of resolute endeavor to keep our elections clean, honest and free of taint of any kind," that no deficit would exist at the end of the campaign.

Belief is expressed that the present railroad regulatory laws are based on correct principles "the spirit of which must always be preserved."

Touching upon the merchant marine question, the platform favors an American built and owned fleet, but voices opposition to government operation or ownership.

Support is pledged to continue appropriations "commensurate with our needs and resources" for highway, road and rail construction.

Administration of the radio facilities in such a manner as to insure the reception by every home of adequate and varied broadcast programs is advocated, with the assignment of communication channels in the best interest of the business man, farmer and public.

Continued development of inland and intro-cosatl waterways is favored as an essential part of the transportation system.

The platform also takes a stand for "full and adequate relief for our disabled veterans."

It declares for sustained state regulation of public utilities and advocates the application "of the conservation principle by the wise development of our national resources."

Reclamation is dealt with in a review of administration achievements as is the development of commercial aviation.

Creation of a commission to investigate and report to congress upon the existing system of the administration of Indian affairs is favored.

Anti-Lynching Law.

For the negro, the party recommends the enactment of a federal anti-lynching law "so that the full influence of the federal government may be wielded to exterminate this hidous crime."

While expressing belief in the essential unity of the American people and the zealous protection by the federal government of the rights of its citizens, the platform asserts that the effort which "is continually being made to have the federal government move into the field of state activities has never had and never will have the support of the Republican party."
